Econogy Hub: Where sustainability meets business

At the international textile apparel flagship fair – Intertextile Shanghai Apparel Fabrics, Texpertise Econogy, a collective idea, will be introduced to take over the sustainable topics in Greater China and enable efficient knowledge sharing at the fair. A new featured zone Econogy Hub will be introduced to provide exhibition space, meeting points, and seminar stage for the eco game-changers and the industry leaders for knowledge sharing and business networking.

What is Econogy Hub?

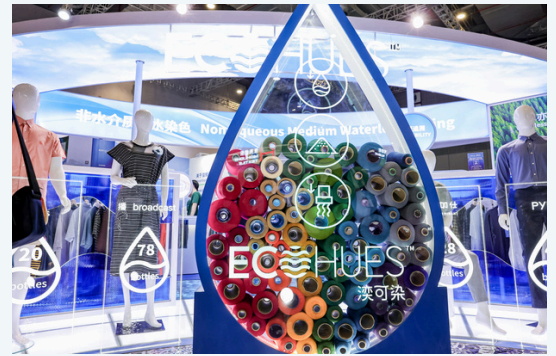

- Econogy Hub provides the same great business results for sustainability-minded organisations in the textile industry, now with the added weight of the global Texpertise Econogy brand.
- Exhibitors are required to undergo an external sustainability check, the Econogy Check, to exhibit in this zone, providing extra assurance to buyers that they can trust your sustainable offerings.

Who should join Econogy Hub?

- Certifiers, accreditation companies, testing laboratories, eco-friendly producers, technology or material innovators, traceability solutions providers, consultants for best practices and more...

What is Econogy Talks?

- A platform of sustainability-focused seminars and panel discussions where you can connect and exchange insights with a range of key textile players.

Texpertise Econogy

Messe Frankfurt's Texpertise is a global network of textile trade fairs comprising 50+ events in 11 countries and regions. We have spent the last 15 years working on accelerating the rate of innovation and change in the textile and fashion industry in order to press ahead with achieving the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and the Paris Climate Agreement. "Texpertise Econogy" stands for all sustainability activities of Messe Frankfurt's Texpertise Network across international trade fairs. The term "Econogy" combines economy and ecology in one word and shows how decisive sustainability is today for the economic success of a company.
